“The Missouri State Opioid Response: Modifying the Response for 2019”

Missouri is one of only two states that experienced an increase in opioid overdose deaths in 2018. This is despite a nationally-recognized medication-first model. Dr. Rottnek, a member of the Opioid Crisis Management Team, will discuss Missouri’s work and our program enhancements to respond to what we have learned.

and Director of Community Medicine, and Program Director of the Addiction Medicine Fellowship. He is board-certified in Family Medicine and Addiction Medicine.

Dr. Rottnek received his Doctor of Medicine from Saint Louis University, and his Master of Arts in Health Care Mission from Aquinas Institute of Theology. Rottnek was instrumental to the creation of the Center for Substance Use Disorders and Pain Management at Saint Louis University.

All members of the S&T community are invited to attend Dr. Rottnek’s presentation. Please direct questions to Kristine Swenson, director of the Center for Science, Technology, and Society, at kswenson@mst.edu
